It is interesting that involving the root element does not seem to be the key feature for relevancy. This is in my opinion even more surprising than the fact that author features do not count much, since usually root elements contain the questions which are answered in the thread.